

Modern Slavery Policy

Policy Statement and Commitment to the Modern Slavery Act 2015

Modern slavery is a crime and a violation of fundamental human rights. It can take various forms, such as slavery, servitude, forced and compulsory labour, and human trafficking (e.g. sexual exploitation), all of which include the deprivation of a person's liberty by another in order to exploit them for personal or commercial gain.

Twin Group has a zero-tolerance approach to modern slavery within its business and supply chain. Although Twin Group does not meet the statutory requirements in relation to the Modern Slavery Act 2015, the Group is committed to:

- (a) Acting ethically and with integrity in all our business dealings and relationships.
- (b) Implementing and enforcing effective systems and controls to ensure modern slavery is not taking place in our business or in any of our supply chains.
- (c) Ensuring there is transparency in our approach to tackling modern slavery in our business and in our supply chains consistent with the disclosure obligations under the Modern Slavery Act 2015.

This policy falls part of Twin Group's Safeguarding Children and Vulnerable Adults Policy and Procedures.

Scope

This policy covers all employees, participants, contractors and everyone we do business with.

Legal Context

The Modern Slavery Act 2015 is an Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom. It is designed to combat modern slavery in the UK and it consolidates several pieces of prior legislation into the two main offences of; 1) Slavery, Servitude and Forced or Compulsory Labour and; 2) Human Trafficking. The seriousness of these offences was recognised by an increase in the maximum sentence to life imprisonment. The act extends to England and Wales. It received Royal Assent and became law on 26 March 2015.

Provisions

The act contains a number of provisions:

- The consolidation of the existing slavery and trafficking offences
- The introduction of two new civil orders to enable the courts to place restrictions on those convicted of modern slavery offences, or those involved in such offences but not yet convicted
- The establishment of an independent Anti-Slavery Commissioner to encourage good practice on the prevention of modern slavery offences and the identification of victims.
- The provision of mechanisms for seizing traffickers' assets and channelling some of that money towards victims for compensation payments
- The creation of a new statutory defence for slavery or trafficking victims compelled to commit criminal offences
- The provision of child trafficking advocates

Definitions

Section 1 of the Act - Slavery, Servitude and Forced or Compulsory Labour

This is defined as 'where a person holds another person in conditions of slavery or servitude or requires another person to perform forced or compulsory labour and that person knows, or ought to know, that the other person is being held as such'. This includes any work or service which is extracted from a victim under threat or menace or deception.

Section 2 of the Act - Human Trafficking

This is defined as 'where a person arranges or facilitates the travel of another person with a view to that person being exploited'. The Act now provides a single offence of Human Trafficking, covering sexual and nonsexual exploitation. This involves the recruitment, transportation, transfer, harbouring or receipt of victims for the purposes of exploitation; either within or without the victim's consent, either inside or outside the UK

Section 3 of the Act – Meaning of Exploitation

The Act defines exploitation as; Slavery, servitude and forced or compulsory labour; Sexual exploitation; Removal of organs; Securing services by force, threats or deception; Securing services from children and vulnerable persons.

Criminal exploitation and the Section 45 Defence

Section 45 of the Act provides a statutory defence to victims who have committed a crime themselves. It does not extend to more serious offences such as rape or murder. Offences to which the Section 45 defence can be applied include drug dealing, cannabis cultivation, shop lifting, benefit fraud, pick pocketing and begging. If a person raises the Section 45 defence officers must take steps to investigate.

Indicators of Modern Slavery

A thorough knowledge of what may indicate that someone is falling victim to modern slavery is essential for both individuals and businesses.

Knowing the signs and adequately reporting suspicions can make a significant difference to, not only the victim's wellbeing but also to preventing further cases. There are many indicators of modern slavery, not all will be applied to the same case and some may be difficult to immediately identify. At the same time, a person may display a number of the indicators set out below, but they may not necessarily be a victim of slavery or trafficking. The list below is not exhaustive:

Staff Official
